

Child of Crocker

Rushworth Chronicle

24 August, 1888

We have to record the death of two infants named Crocker and Miller, who expired at their parents' residences, Rushworth, on Sunday night.

They had both been unwell for some days, but there was every probability of their getting better, the dreadful heat of Sunday however proved too much for them in their weakened state.

The remains were interred in the local cemetery on Tuesday.