

Mrs William Dixon

Rushworth Chronicle

3 September, 1920

Mrs William Dixon, a very old and respected resident of Rushworth, passed away at her late residence, Moora Road, on Sunday last at the ripe old age of 83 years.

With her husband, the late Wm. Dixon, deceased came to Rushworth in the early days, and was thus a connecting link with the earliest history of the place—the good old days of the diggings.

She was a very kind old lady, of an unassuming disposition, and a good neighbour, and her many friends will regret to hear of her death. Deceased leaves a grown up family.

The remains were interred in the local cemetery on Tuesday afternoon, the Rev. Nelson performing the funeral obsequies, while the mortuary arrangements were in the hands of Mr E. F. Anderson.
