

Mr W. J. Leroy, butcher, of Rushworth, suffered a severe misfortune on Saturday evening last in the death of his youngest son, a fine little fellow of one year and five months. For some time past the poor little fellow had had a very bad cold, and on the date mentioned took convulsions.

The remains were interred in the local cemetery on Monday afternoon, the Rev. F. J. Jennings conducting the funeral ceremony.

(Rushworth Chronicle, 27 May, 1910)