

Tom Jones

Rushworth Chronicle

6 March, 1903

Tom Jones, a well-known old Rushworth identity, expired at his residence on Monday evening last, and his remains were interred in the local cemetery on Wednesday.

The Rev. J. Weir officiated at the grave and Mr Anderson had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Jones had been trying hard to get his pension for the last twelve months, and we understand that a letter came to the Rushworth post-office on the day of his death informing him that his application had been successful.
